

REC

3. A bond of record testifying the recognisor to owe unto the recognisee a certain sum of money; and is acknowledged in some court of record; and those that are mere recognisances are not sealed but enrolled. It is also used for the verdict of the twelve men empanelled upon an affize. Crut.
The English should not marry with any Irish, unless bound by recognisance with sureties, to continue loyal. Davies.
TO RECOGNISE. v. a. [recognosco, Lat.]

1. To acknowledge; to recover and avow knowledge of any person or thing.

The British cannon formidably roars,
While starting from his oozy bed,
Th' asserted ocean rears his reverend head,
To view and recognise his ancient lord. Dryden.
Then first he recognis'd th' ethereal guest,
Wonder and joy alternate fire his breast. Pope.

2. To review; to reexamine.
However their causes speed in your tribunals, Christ will recognise them at a greater. South.

RECOGNISE. n. f. He in whose favour the bond is drawn.
RECOGNISOR. n. f. He who gives the recognisance.
RECOGNITION. n. f. [recognitio, Latin.]

1. Review; renovation of knowledge.
The virtues of some being thought expedient to be annually had in remembrance, brought in a fourth kind of public reading, whereby the lives of such saints had, at the time of their yearly memorials, solemn recognition in the church of God. Hooker, b. iii. f. 20.

2. Knowledge confessed.
Every species of fancy hath three modes; recognition of a thing, as present; memory of it, as past; and foresight of it, as to come. Grew's Cymol.

3. Acknowledgment.
If the recognition or acknowledgment of a final concord, upon any writ of covenant finally, be taken by justice of assize, and the yearly value of those lands be declared by affidavit made before the same justice; then is the recognition and value signed with the hand-writing of that justice. Bacon.

- TO RECOIL. v. n. [recoil, Fr.]
1. To rush back in consequence of resistance, which cannot be overcome by the force impressed.

The very thought of my revenges that way
Recoil upon me; in himself too mighty. Shakespeare.

The mint gained upon the late statute, by the recoinage of groats and half-groats, now twelvepences and sixpences. Bacon.

- TO RECOLLECT. v. a. [recollatus, Lat.]
1. To recover to memory.
It did relieve my passion much;
More than light airs and recollected terms
Of these most brutish and giddy paced times. Shakespeare.
Recollect every day the things seen, heard, or read, which made any addition to your understanding. Watts's Logic.

2. To recover to memory.
The Tyrian queen
Admir'd his fortunes, more admir'd the man;
Then recollected stood. Dryden's Æneid.

3. To gather what is scattered; to gather again.
Now that God hath made his light radiate in his word, men may recollect those scattered divine beams, and kindling with them the topics proper to warm our affections, enflame holy zeal. Boyle.

- RECOLLECTION. n. f. [recollatus, Lat.] Recovery of notion; revival in the memory.
Recollection is when an idea is fought after by the mind, and with pain and endeavour found, and brought again in view. Locke.

REC

Let us take care that we sleep not without such a recollection of the actions of the day as may represent any thing that is remarkable, as matter of sorrow or thanksgiving. Taylor.

The last image of that troubled heap,
When sense subsides, and fancy sports in sleep,
Though past the recollection of the thought,
Becomes the stuff of which our dream is wrought. Pope.

- TO RECOMFORT. v. a. [re and comfort, Fr.]
1. To comfort or console again.
What place is there left, we may hope our woes to recomfort. Sidney, b. i.
